The Northern Germany Statistical Office

Statistical Office for Hamburg and
Schleswig-Holstein

The Northern Germany Statistical Office

The Statistical Office for Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein – the Northern Germany Statistical Office – is the central service institute in the field of official statistics for these two federal states. It delivers information and analytical data on Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein as a service to the general public, to administrative-, political- or economic clients, to all social groups as well as to researchers.

The Northern Germany Statistical Office's core business is the realisation of mandatory official statistics for Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein, which are regulated by the federal- or European legislation. This comprises data collection, processing, analysis and interpretation as well as the publication of the results for the region.

To an increasing degree, the Northern Germany Statistical Office offers its services to co-operation partners and customers, either by supplying standard- or customised products.

Collaborative official statistics

When collecting official statistics on a national basis, the state statistical offices work closely together with the Federal Statistical Office. With very few exceptions, the state statistical offices are responsible for data collection and processing. This collaborative procedure results in comparable results for all 16 German federal states and makes it possible to merge these results on a national level.

Objectivity and data protection

The principles of objectivity and methodical independence apply equally to all state statistical offices in collecting, processing and analysing data. National and state legislation guarantee data protection. Any individual providing information may rest assured that his personal data will be protected and will only be used for legally obligated purposes.

Organisation and personnel

The Statistical Office for Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein, formed by merging the two former state offices, was founded as a public institution on January 1st in 2004. The new office is based in Hamburg and operates locations in Kiel and Hamburg.

435 people currently work at the Northern Germany Statistical Office, 204 of which are male and 231 are female, 95 are part-time employees and 85 have fixed-term contracts. 209 colleagues work in Hamburg and 226 in Kiel. For the 2011 Census 73 additional employees have been recruited.

The director Helmut Eppmann manages the office independently. He leads the business and represents the institution to the outside. As his substitute acts Sigrid Krumbholz-Mai.

The supervision is carried out by a five-headed Governing Board.

The office is divided into five departments:

Population, census, households, education, tax issues, finances, health, social affairs, justice
